As To Boys.

The old Jesuits used to say: "Give us a boy until he is thirteen, and anybody else can have him afterward."

It was a true saying, and their influence upon their pupils was found to last through life in almost every case. Early years are formative years. No boy or girl can afford to say, "When I grow up I will give up this or that bad habit, or enter upon this or that right path." In the early years that make character every day of delay or of wrong doing counts, and its results may be everlasting.

A boy can be orderly as well as a girl. Upon the great men-of-war in our navy, with not a woman on board there is an exquisite neatness and order that would do credit to the best housekeeper in the United States. If our sailors are trained to perfect orderliness, why can not our boys be, too?

It is very easy to believe that we know better what is good for us than our parents do. Perhaps we may study out of a more modern geography than they did, and know more about the higher mathematics, but a course of life often teaches more than geography and mathematics can teach, and in that course they are undoubtedly far ahead of us. We make a great mistake in undervaluing our parents' wisdom.

Every day is a new chance to begin a new record.—Selected.

The Work at Berea.

The college at Berea, Kentucky, is doing for the interior something such a work as Mr. Moody's schools are doing for the East, in furnishing a thorough education under Christian influences at a cost which brings it within the reach of those who are not rich. It is an unusual thing for people to go southward for an education, but the special opportunities at Berea amply justify such a course. The natural cost of living in the southern mountains is much less than elsewhere. The climate is of the finest; and at Berea has been gathered a faculty of Christian men and women trained in the best schools of the country, so that the college really offers "northern advantages" in its southern mountain climate, at rates which make it "cheaper than staying at home!"

The fall term opened September 12. Among the new instructors are Prof. John W. Dinsmore, lately called from important public school work in Nebraska, and Rev. Howard N. Jones, who is a teacher of experience and has lately been two years abroad on a fellowship from Chicago Seminary.—Union Gospel News.

An Educated Girl.

Brief Synopsis of a lecture delivered Monday evening by Prof. Nellie S. Kedzie of the Bradley Institute, Peoria, Ill.

The value of any life to-day, is measured by its ability to meet the demands made upon it.

The world has found that education fits men and women for life's duties.

Education must not mean simply the training of the brains, but also a leading out and training of all the powers.

We train men for the special work they expect to do in the world.

Nearly all women whether they marry or not will need the ability to carry on the duties of a home.

The well educated girl has not only trained brains but trained hands as well—and has the heart to will, the brain to plan and the hand to execute.

The ability to sew, to cook, to plan for a household, means as much as ability to read and write.

The nation depends on the homes for strength.

As the women of the land hold much of the power because of the homes they make—so the welfare of the nation will depend on the "educated girl."

REPAIR THAT LOOM

GIRLS who wish an education at Berea will receive good pay for articles of home manufacture. Bring them to the Lady Principal.

YARD.
Good Homespun Linen, 40c
" " Linesey, 50c
Patent dies not received.
Old fashioned Indigo blue preferred.
Good Homespun Jeans, 50c
" Dress Flannel, 60c
Good Coverlids, well woven and matched, from four to six dollars.

It is a great thing that Berea College is finding a chance for the mountain women to get good money for their homespun.

Ladies who visit Berea from Louisville and Chicago and other cities like to get things like those their grandmothers used to make. And they think the homespun more beautiful as well as more durable than factory-made.

We wish the name of every lady who can spin, weave, or dye. Address: Miss Josephine A. Robinson, Berea, Ky.
